Setting the Curve.

Spanyi is widely recognized for his contribution to the body of knowledge on process improvement and management. He is the Chair of the Education Committee for the Association of BPM Professionals, and a research associate with the Babson College Process Management Research Center. He makes a compelling case for viewing business in terms of the activities that cross traditional organizational boundaries from the customer's point of view and how that can play a central role in growth, cost reduction, time compression and quality. He stresses that in today's competitive business environment where companies are overwhelmed by complexity; confronted by disruptive innovation and globalization, challenged by increasingly demanding shareholders, regulatory bodies, and unsteady capital markets, leaders must have the mindset and the skill set to look beyond the numbers.
